

WITH THE District Agriculturist

By J. S. Duncan

Spruce Sawfly

This insect showed up in many shelterbelts in this area last year. It can be very destructive but control is not too difficult. The damage consists of eating the needles off the branches. This can kill the trees if carried too far.

Control this insect by spraying with any of the following: DDT, either dust or liquid, or Lead Arsenate. If there are only a few trees to be treated they can be dusted with any of the above.

Drop into my office for a bulletin on control of this insect.

4-H Beef Club Shows

The 4-H Beef Clubs in my district will all be holding their Achievement Days in the near future. The members of these clubs appreciate seeing a good attendance and the show is usually worth seeing. The dates and places are as follows:

June 14, Irma Club at Irma.

June 25, Wainwright Club at Wainwright.

July 6, Chauvin Club at Chauvin.

Keep the Stubble on Summerfallow

Nothing can reduce the productivity of land as fast as erosion and a black field of summerfallow is subject to both wind and water erosion. Proper use of blade and disc type machinery will maintain a good cover on the field. Disc type machines should be used only when necessary and then at a speed of not over 3 miles per hour as at higher speeds they pulverize the soil badly. There is very little need to work the soil deeper than three to four inches through the summerfallow year. A field which washes or blows costs you money so why not do your best to prevent this loss.

Delegates and members started to arrive about 11:30 and from then on it was a very busy day. The weather was ideal, roads were good and the hospitality of the Vegreville ladies was unsurpassed. Funeral For Mr. Robt. Cormack

Kinsella district mourns the loss of one of its oldest and most highly respected pioneers, Mr. Robert Cormack, passed away on May 19. Funeral services were held on May 22 from the Kinsella United church at 2:30 p.m., the Rev. Norman Knight officiating. The church was filled to capacity and an overflow crowd gathered outside to pay their last respects to their long time friend and neighbor.

Funeral bearers were Messrs. Geo. Paterson, Albert Loates, B. C. Carpenter, Willie Brown, Allan Barker and E. H. Simmons. Burial took place in the Kinsella Cemetery with the Kinoshia Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

The late Robert Cormack was born in Coldingham, Berwickshire, Scotland, on June 21, 1871, and would have celebrated his 76th birthday anniversary on June 21 this year had he lived. On February 20, 1903, he was united in marriage to Miss Isabella Cairns Wight of Kelso, Scotland. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary two years ago. Mr. Cormack came to Canada in March, 1904, spending one year in the Vegreville district and then took up a homestead just north of Kinsella. It was to this homestead that he brought Mrs. Cormack and son Bert in 1907, travelling from Ranfurly in a covered wagon drawn by oxen.

In speaking of Mr. Cormack, Rev. Knight stated that his life had been one of service and inspiration to many in church and community life. His steadfast adherence to Christian principles was an example all could follow.

Left to mourn a kind and loving husband and father, his wife, a son Bert, farming the old homestead, and Mrs. Ella Briggs of Viking. There are four grandchildren; two brothers, Alex in Calgary and William in Berwickshire, Scotland.

Floral tributes were from: The family; Mr. and Mrs. E. Simmons; Mr. and Mrs. A. Loates and family; T. W. Daniels and family, Kelowna; B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. H. Hodgins and family; Mr. and Mrs. C. News Roundup From Edmonton

By Ken Mason
(Special to The News)

EDMONTON—Does this indicate that perhaps there is an election forthcoming?

Newsmen are accustomed to digging for everything they get in the way of news from the provincial government. So who can blame anyone for wondering about the seemingly routine press release issued by the department of highways last week.

At any other time of the year, it would have been regarded as a mildly important story, announcing a new policy regarding highway construction. It still is, but one can't help noticing the artful timing in the light of the June 29 election.

Translated from the gobbledegook language typical of all governments, the release said the province is planning to assume the cost of building hard-surfaced roads linking district towns with the main highway system.

The new policy comes as a result of representations received from the towns of Olds, Carstairs and Didsbury when plans were approved for the new four-lane divided highway in that area. Hon. Gordon Taylor, minister of highways, says the policy also will apply to the towns of High River and Nanton if the province proceeds with the new highway in that area.

Previously, access roads linking towns with the main highways were built jointly by the province and the municipal authority with the province assuming 75 per cent of the cost. The new deal means the province will pay 100 per cent.

FIGHTING FIRE WITH FIRE: Social Credit's weakest spots are in the cities of Edmonton and Calgary, and the opposition parties know it.

Four of the seven Edmonton seats in the legislature were won by opposition candidates in the 1952 election. Calgary elected three opposition and three Social Credit.

At this point, it must be noted that the opposition parties have tried to make capital of Social Credit's practice of mixing religion and politics. They say Premier Manning's Sunday religion and politics. They say implications.

Trying to build up their strength in Edmonton, the Liberals apparently decided religion and politics would be a good weapon with which to oppose Social Credit. At their convention here last week, the Liberals nominated Rev. Edgar J. Bailey, pastor of First Baptist Church.

In his acceptance speech, Mr. Bailey said he is tired of a political party that thinks it has a monopoly on religion. As one of the capital city's leading preachers, he commands a good deal of respect. And as chaplain of the Canadian Legion here, he is assured of strong support.

Farmers throughout Alberta will be interested in the announcement that the Alberta safety council is planning a demonstration to show why so many accidents occur involving farm tractors. The demonstration will be held June 17 and 18 at the Edmonton district tillage and plowing matches.

B. T. Stephenson, associate professor of agricultural engineering at the U. of A., has designed a tractor with a protective framework to perform this demonstration.

He will show two methods of making the tractor rear up and overturn backward. The first is by the improper hitch where the operator, seeking to obtain a lift on his load, hitches the chain or cable to the axle instead of the drawbar.

The second is attempting to obtain traction in mud by lashing a log or fence post to the drive wheel. This often stops the wheels from skidding but still prevents them from turning, with the result that the power of the engine instead of moving the machine forward raises the front end in an arc around the axle.

There also will be a demonstration to show how a tractor tips on its side. This will be done by running two wheels of the machine up a ramp.

Safety council officials believe graphic demonstrations will give farmers a better idea of required safety measures, and they hope the display will attract wide attention. Tractor mishaps have claimed the lives of several farmers already this year.

It might be a good idea if Prof. Stephenson could be persuaded to demonstrate his rigged up tractor throughout the province this summer at local exhibitions, fairs and stampedes.

BILL
IRVINE
Says:

"Canadian resources are great. They are great in the basic materials essential to an industrial age, great in mechanical power, in technological knowledge and in labor power. We should be easily able to produce, not only the highest standard of living in the world for ourselves, but should be leading all nations in the fight against poverty existing in less fortunate lands.

We want our society to have as its conscious objective the developing of the healthiest, wisest, noblest and happiest human beings of which man is potentially capable. And that means a just and efficient economy, the availability of the best medical care to every individual, opportunity to obtain the highest education which each person has the mental capacity to use, and both training for the responsibilities of life and opportunity to do a share of the nation's work. Is this not a better goal for society, than the search for profit and power in the manner in which an animal seeks its prey in the jungle? Which are you voting for?

from—

DR. F. MACNEILL SMITH

Liberal Candidate

Few people are familiar with the amount of federal aid which may be obtained for construction of housing for aged persons. Under Section 16 of the National Housing Act, any interested group of citizens can, on application to the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, borrow up to 90 percent of the value of the project, at interest rates of 3½ percent, repayable over as long as fifty years. Certain formalities are demanded; the interested group must form a limited dividend company, incorporated under provincial law, sell shares and form a board of directors, to assure continued community interest in the project. The corporation must not pay a dividend of over 5 percent, and the length of time for repayment must not exceed the life of the projected building. There are also provisions as to size of unit; the usual plan is modelled on a motel, with self-contained kitchen and bath, suitable for an elderly couple. Rentals usually run from $18 to $30 a month. Further information may be obtained from the Regional Office of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in Edmonton.
